MEMORANDUM FOR: Director of Central Intelligence

SUBJECT: Briefing on the Subject of New National Intelligence Products and the National Intelligence Officer's Role in Their Production

1. We have prepared a briefing for you which proposes that you consider a family of national, coordinated intelligence products. These product recommendations are a direct response to that part of your objectives memorandum to the President which stated your desire to determine which national intelligence products satisfy user needs and to identify new product requirements.

2. Our presentation also speculates on the role which the National Intelligence Officers (NIO) could play in the management of national intelligence production.

3. This briefing--being speculative and perhaps stimulating in respect to shaping your views on how NIOs might function--has not yet been presented to the Deputy Directors of any of the principal intelligence agencies. Depending upon your response, it would be our intention to brief them after your review. Andy Marshall has heard it and was most interested in its conclusions and recommendations.

4. May we schedule one hour for this presentation?
